SOLDIER DROWNS IN RECREATION AREA

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

There is a potato shortage in some parts of the country today and the United Press was talking around to its various bureaus to see how the situation stood.

Our Teletype recorded these abbreviated conversations in the language of the teletype operators.

Here is one that struck our fancy.

We had tato shrtg sev wks ago, but not now. No dang selling out. Stores selling more than before, ply due hoarding view recent publicity. Tatos not up to usual gud standard. We got em but don't know fm one wk to otr whr emng from. This land of rice and gravy which gud sub.

Translated it reads thusly. We had a potatoes shortage several weeks ago, but not at the present time. There is no danger of grocers selling out. The stores are selling more than before, but this is probably due to the hoarding caused by the recent publicity given the shortage. The potatoes on the market are not up to the usual good standards. We have them but do not know from one week to the other where they are coming from. This is the land of rice and gravy which is an excellent substitute.

Today is Memorial Poppy Day, and part of the Veterans of Foreign Wars "Buddy Poppy" week. Today is also part of Letters from America Week, and the last day in Merchant Marine Book Week and World Trade Week.

This date last year: President Truman asked Congress to appropriate eight and one-half billion dollars for foreign economic and military aid against Communism; the French national assembly ended a five-year term during which France's economy returned to pre-war levels; the president of Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut, Dr. George Funston, accepted a three-year term as president of New York's stock exchange; and in Albany, New York, the Court of Appeals ruled that convicted bookmaker Frank Erickson must serve a two-year sentence and pay a $30,000 fine.

This date in history: Samuel Morse sent the first telegraph message from Washington to Baltimore, in 1844, the message—"what hath God wrought"; the Mexican Senate ratified the treaty ending the war with the United States; in 1883, New York's Brooklyn bridge was opened; in 1883, and two hundred persons died when the steamer Victoria capsized on the Thames River, Canada, in 1881.

Woman Sees Elephant, Non-Pink Variety

The last thing you'd expect to see on the roads around Milwaukee is an elephant.

But it's the first thing that Mrs. Casimir Kott saw while driving by a Milwaukee cemetery.

There, clear as day was a huge bull elephant, coming out of the cemetery and stomping down the road—straight at Mrs. Kott's car. Mrs. Kott brought the car to a halt. Her horn blasted, her children screamed, but the noise didn't stop the elephant. He kept coming right at the car.

He was less than 10 feet away when Mrs. Kott finally managed to get the car going again. She made a swift start and—with a scant five feet to spare—got away from the elephant.

Mrs. Kott tried to tell the cemetery attendants about the elephant. But they were hard to convince. But the joke was on them. They looked around and, sure enough, there was the elephant, peacefully munching grass.

His trainer was nearby. The elephant wasn't dangerous, he explained. The beast was just hungry and had gone out to get some food, before returning to the circus to which he belonged.

Reds Knuckled In To New Commander Of Prison Camps

By United Press
The new commander of the UN's military Koje Island prison camp appeared to be getting things under control.

But two former commanders have lost their stars, and Congress is clamoring for more facts to fix the blame for recent disorders.

According to latest reports Brigadier General Hayden Boatner has won his first victory over the Koje prisoners. In line with his orders, they have removed signs, flags and other symbols of defiance in nine of the compounds, including notorious prison 76.

At the same time, Boatner has called for two companies of British Commonwealth troops to reinforce the UN guards and paratroopers already on the island. The new troops are due to arrive during the day.

These new developments follow a long-delayed disclosure by the Army that seven persons were killed and 64 others wounded in a riot at Koje on April 10. That makes three big riots in all that have swept the prison camp where some 70,000 hard-core Communist captives of the Korean war are being held.

In the April 10th violence, four UN guards and paratroopers were killed. The rioting was said to have followed up the biggest air blow of the war by dropping more bombs on the enemy's de facto war factory area near Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

Neither Dodd nor Colson had much to say on their demotions. Colson was wearing the eagles of a colonel this morning, although Dodd, when called at his billet in Korea, answered "General Dodd speaking."

Meanwhile the Korean true talks are in their second day of a three-day recess. And the only significant military action is on the part of allied forces who have followed up the biggest air blow of the war by dropping more bombs on the enemy's de facto war factory area near Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

South Korean guards and three prisoners were killed, while six South Korean guards, 57 Reds and one American officer were wounded. The Army gave no reason for suppressing news of it until now.

The announcement that two former camp commanders have been demoted was made yesterday by the Pentagon in Washington. They are Brigadier General Francis Dodd, who allowed himself to be captured by the prisoners in Compound 7, and Brigadier General Charles Colson, who got the prisoners to release Dodd by promising them embarrassing concessions.

In addition, Brigadier General Paul Yount, whose command includes Koje, is going to get a reprimand.

Neither Dodd nor Colson had much to say on their demotions. Colson was wearing the eagles of a colonel this morning, although Dodd, when called at his billet in Korea, answered "General Dodd speaking."

Heavy Quake Shakes Las Vegas, Nevada
Folks in Las Vegas and Boulder City, Nevada, and Hawaii have something in common today, they're talking about earthquakes.

In Nevada, two quakes, described as the "heaviest in years"—rocked Las Vegas and Boulder City last night, but no damages or injuries are reported. The two shocks came within one half an hour of each other, and police switchboard operators were kept busy denying the quakes had anything to do with atomic bomb tests.

On the island of Hawaii, a strong quake tumbled part of a cliff into the sea, and set a series of landslides in motion that temporarily blocked roads and damaged two schoolhouses.

COV. PAUL A. DEVER of Mass. is reported to be a choice of the Democratic convention arrangements committee meeting in Chicago May 15, a keynote speaker for convention opening July 21.

Lowly Spud Gains Prominence As Store Supplies Dwindle
By United Press
On Saratoga Street in Baltimore, Md., there is a jewelry shop. And in the window of this shop there are many valuable items—bracelets, watches, pins, diamond necklaces, and gold rings.

But in the center, surrounded by the precious stones, lies what may become the rarest of all. The potato.

Reports are coming in from all over the nation—reports indicating that the people's diet is undergoing a momentous change. In Kansas City, Mo., stores were said out at nine o'clock this morning. Customers are buying Navy beans, spaghetti, and noodles as substitutes.

Dedication Ceremony To Be Sunday

The sanctuary of the First Baptist Church is pictured above with the home of the pastor, Dr. H. C. Chiles. A dedication ceremony will be held at the church tomorrow at 10:50 a. m. to dedicate the new educational building of the church which was recently completely paid for.

The educational building lies directly behind the pastor's home and is connected to the main church building.

The new educational building of the First Baptist Church will be dedicated tomorrow morning at 10:50 a.m. The new building was started on May 22, 1949 when the pastor Dr. H. C. Chiles broke the ground on the present site.

The eighty-four room building was completed in about one year and the opening day was held on May 21, 1950.

The building cost about $97,000 in cash about $35,000 in materials, labor and technical advice donated. The final payment was made on May 4 when the congregation of the church gave $8,203.50 for that purpose.

The building fund was started on February 17, 1943 and various gifts designated for that purpose were placed in this fund. $4,000 a year was placed in the budget of the church for the building fund and by January 1, 1949 the fund had grown to over $25,000.

On May 8, 1949 a special offering was taken up for the new building, amounting to over $13,000 with about $7,000 pledged. The building was rapidly paid for during 1949, 1950 and 1951 with the final payment made early in this year with the special offering.

The committees in charge of the building are as follows: Planning committee, A. W. Russell, Donny Ragdale, C. E. Jones J. W. Outland, Joe W. Parker, and Dr. O. C. Wells.

Architect: R. W. Key. Superintendent of Construction: Rufus Saunders.

Bookkeeper and treasurer of building fund: Stanford Andrus. Building committee: Gus J. Robertson, R. W. Churchill, and Ray Brownfield.

Purchasing committee: A. W. Russell, I. Wells Purdon, E. F. Settle.

Superintendent of construction: The pastor of the church is Dr. H. C. Chiles.

Was Member of Engineer Group Preparing Area For U. S. Army

Private First Class Robert Wawrzyniakowski of the 457th Airborne Engineer Battalion was drowned late yesterday evening, on Kentucky Lake in the recreation area being constructed by the army.

About five hundred men are in the area at the present preparing it for the soldiers of Fort Campbell.

The body of Wawrzyniakowski was recovered in about forty-five minutes after he fell into the water from a boat. Corner Max H. Churchill reported that he had been out of the water an additional forty-five minutes when he arrived on the scene of the tragedy.

Reports indicate that the soldier was in a boat with two other men and either fell into the water, or the boat capsized throwing him into the water. Exact circumstances surrounding the drowning could not be obtained.

The soldiers in the recreation area at the present are building access roads, a landing strip for light planes, and are clearing an area for tents.

About two hundred an fifty men were at the point where Wawrzyniakowski was drowned and a like number were in another position in the area.

The soldier was drowned about one mile North of the Irvin Cobb Resort in the recreation area. Catholic rites were said on the banks of Kentucky Lake and the body was sent to Fort Campbell where it will be returned to the boy's home in Wisconsin.

Demos Meet Over State For Selection
By United Press
Democratic county or legislative meetings will be held throughout the state today to select delegates to the congressional district and state conventions which will be held in Louisville next Tuesday.

At the district and state conventions, Kentucky's 26 delegates to the Democratic national convention in Chicago July 21 will be selected, among other things.

Kentucky's national convention delegates are almost certain to be pledged to vice-president Alben W. Barkley for the Democratic presidential nomination. Gov. Lawrence Wetherby and other party leaders assured Barkley of the 26 delegates last Saturday night at the Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner when they urged him to enter the presidential race.

Barkley also is slated to go to the convention as a Kentucky delegate. He hasn't missed a national convention since 1920.

At the county conventions today, delegates to the district and state conventions will be selected on the basis of one delegate for each 100 Democratic votes cast in the last presidential election.

The district meetings will be held in Louisville Tuesday morning prior to the state convention in the afternoon.

At the district conventions, 16 delegates selected at the state convention will be selected. The district conventions also will name for recommendation to the state convention one presidential elector for each, and two women members of the state committee for the next four years.

At the state convention, the remaining 10 national delegates will be selected and the remaining two presidential electors will be named. The state has 10 presidential electors.

It is believed that the 10 national delegates selected at the state convention will be expanded to 21 instead of a full vote. Vice-president Barkley is expected to be one of the at-large delegates.

The state convention also will name eight members from the state-at-large to the state committee, governing body of the party. Also to be chosen at the state convention are a state democratic chairman, a national democratic committee man and committee-woman.

The Hopkinsville Hoppers edged Owensboro 8 to 7 after the Hoppers scored the winning run in the last half of the ninth inning. L. Westover who came on the mound in the sixth inning was the winner.

Jackson Pitcher Howard, Ralph hurled an 8 to 6 victory over the Madisonville Miners. Ralph allowed 11 hits and Jackson slammed in six runs in the first inning. The game between Mayfield and Paducah was rained out in the fourth inning with Paducah leading 2 to 1.

QUESTION: Do you think girls should pass up sound matrimonial prospects to wait for her ideal man?
ANSWERS: Mrs. Douglas Rhodes: Yes, because I don't care how sound it is or how much you have, if you aren't happy then you're better off without him.
Mrs. Rudy Tree: I should say so, but I think the girl should certainly be in love with a fellow before she can talk about matrimony. I think the basis of any marriage is love.
Vernon Riley: I don't think so, because an ideal man doesn't materialize very fast, of course, love should go along with any marriage, but after all marriage is, in a way a business proposition.

Kentucky: Considerable cloudiness with scattered showers and thunderstorms today, tonight and Sunday. High today around 80 extreme west pouring. Middle to upper 80's central and east portions.

Another Slap At Kefauver

Ever since Senator Estes Kefauver let it be known he intended to seek the presidential nomination he has been given one slap after another by President Truman, the titular head of the party.

The most disgusting thing imaginable is to see a large segment of the old Truman press beating the drums for Kefauver when the real friends in Tennessee, as well as elsewhere, know they will desert him like rats deserting a sinking ship if the corruption-riddled Truman administration can muster enough strength to stop the Tennessee, either before the convention, or after it convenes.

The thing that happened in Illinois would have sent anybody except the head of a political party to the penitentiary. That is, if reports be true that Chairman McKinney spent $40,000.00 of national campaign funds in Cook County alone to defeat Kefauver in the Illinois primary. Democratic campaign funds spent to damage a democratic candidate, is about as criminal as anything we know of.

Now comes the announcement that President Truman has given his blessing publicly to California State Attorney General Edmund G. Brown, favorite son candidate who will oppose Kefauver in the June 3rd presidential primary.

We said in this column when Kefauver announced his intention of becoming a candidate that the only way he could get the nomination was total and complete repudiation of Truman and all he stands for. We still think so. We believe his best chance for the nomination rests with the South and that he had better realize it before it is too late. He simply can't depend on the kind of political machines in the north, mid-west and far west that elected Truman in 1948.

Fulton Coach Resigns His Position

Coach Bill Hogg of the Fulton High School has resigned his position there. The following article is being reprinted from the Fulton Daily Leader, daily paper in Fulton.

"W. H. (Bill) Hogg, head football and basketball coach at Fulton High School, has turned in his resignation to the Board of Education. He has not accepted another position as yet but is considering several offers that are better financially."

"Hogg went to Fulton in 1948, from his hometown of Cumberland, Ky., where he was coaching and served four years in the head coaching job at the local school. He is a graduate at Center College and the University of Kentucky. He succeeded J. B. Goranoff as the Fulton coach."

"During his four year stay at Fulton he fielded two good football teams, one year finishing second in the West Kentucky Conference. The most notable game of his career was the 37-0 victory over the Murray Tigers, for the first time in many years. In 1951 his basketball team went to the Regional tournament at Murray. Two outstanding basketball games were against Clinton and Murray. The winner Clinton was the first in nine years and the defeat of Murray was the first in 13 years."

"Coach Hogg is married and has two children, Donna and Billy."

Dear Bob:

Have you got all of your tobacco set yet? I would come out and help you but I am afraid my back wouldn't hold out. You know, the last time I saw that car of yours, you had two slick tires. Why don't you let me fix you up with two Davis Wearwells for only twelve ninety-five, including tax.

You have bought tires from us before so I don't have to tell you that nobody has a better guarantee than we do.

You only pay for the time you use them. The next time you come to town stop in and let me show you how to save money. I can't, but I'll show you how.

Be Seeing You,
Nix

Who Can Stop Sal Maglie? Big Question In Majors Is

By United Press

There are two big questions in the National League today. One—who's going to stop Sal Maglie? And two—who's going to stop the Dodgers?

Maglie had one of his comparatively "bad" nights last night as he allowed the Boston Braves eight hits and three runs. However, New York got five runs and Maglie posted his eighth victory of the year—against no defeats. Actually, the only shaky innings that Maglie had were the first and the ninth. In the first, he yielded one Boston run on a walk. A single and an infield out. And in the ninth, he gave up two tallies on a double, a homer and a single which set-up a double play and an infield out. All got him out of the inning. All the fourth on a double, three singles, a fly and Al Dark's homer off loser Max Surkont.

The Giants won failed to cut down Brooklyn's half-game lead in the National League. The Dodgers blasted the Phils 5-1 at Philadelphia as catcher Roy Campanella clouded two homers, one a grand-slammer, to account for all the Dodger. Big Ben Wade worked in the shadow of the bulky Campanella's bat to post his third win of the year. Karl Drews gave up all five runs and gets the loss. The victory is the seventh in a row for the Dodgers.

In other National League games, the Pirates broke an eight game losing streak by shading Chicago 6-5 in 13 innings. Gus Bell and Johnny Kameron cracked two straight doubles to win it off Warren Hacker. Ted Wilks came in for Pittsburgh in the eighth and gets the win. And at Cincinnati, McMillan gave the Reds that in for Pittsburgh in the eighth and gets the win. And at Cincinnati, McMillan gave the Reds that in for Pittsburgh in the eighth and gets the win.

Annual 4-H Week Set For June 3-7

Dates for the 20th annual 4-H Club Week to be held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, have been set for June 3 to 7. It has been announced. Between 2,000 and 1,500 club delegates, leaders and county farm and home agents will attend.

The five-day program has been planned to provide inspiration, information and entertainment, according to J. W. Whitcomb, state leader of 4-H work. The 4-Hers themselves will have an important place in the program as they demonstrate farm and home practices and take part in discussion groups. There will also be a speech contest in which they tell of the value of club work to them.

"Getting Along with Others," is the general theme for discussion groups in which both boys and girls will have a part. Prof. J. P. Schmidt, of Ohio State University, nationally known leader of young people's discussion groups, will be in charge.

The convention's program will be opened Tuesday night with a lecture - demonstration entitled, "Progress in Better Living," by Louis P. Shannon, of the Du Pont Company, Wilmington, Del. Through exhibits he will show American progress resulting from chemical research.

Miss Judy Lester of Lyon county is president of the Kentucky Association of 4-H Clubs. William McCoy of Martin county is vice president and Miss Jeanette Peters of Scott county is secretary.

Spencer Farmers Stress Pastures

That Spencer county farmers are becoming alert to the importance of pastures is reported by Nevill L. Goebel, county agent with the University of Kentucky. He cites several instances of pasture improvement and increased acreage: Clarence and Frank Rogers have 100 acres of Kenland Red Clover and 12 acres of Atlantic alfalfa. After testing the soil in 11 fields, J. D. Brown stated he saved $400 in fertilizer, and through this savings will be able to fertilize additional pastures. — Lee Stevens stated that a third of the has spread about a third of the spread in the renovation of pastures this year. He operates more than 50 acres of fertilized more than 50 acres of pasture land this spring. — Scott McLean is seeding two acres each of certified Atlantic, Buffalo and Ranger alfalfa in the same field to determine the merits of each. — According to reports of farmers and seed dealers, 1,000 acres of Atlantic alfalfa will be seeded this season.

Wake Island in the Pacific has a shoreline of only 12 miles.

40 Neighbors Aid In Raising Barn

With the help of about 40 neighbors and friends in an old-fashioned barn raising, Joe Ashbrook of Ballard county had a new barn about three-fourths completed in one day. The pole-type barn, 32 by 52 feet in size, was made of lumber cut on the farm. Total cost was less than $1,000. R. K. Kelley, University of Kentucky county agent, notes that it will be used to house 40 head of cattle and up store hay.

CHAPTER SIXTY

"YOU CAN see it wasn't my fault," Lincoln said, after he and Leonie had settled matters and had assured each other that no two people had ever been so happy. "I just couldn't help myself. Your uncle had me in an impossible position. I couldn't even tell you."

"Uncle means well," Leonie said. "He has the best heart in the world, but everything I do seems to make him obstinate."

"I don't know if I ought to tell you this," Lincoln said, "but he was really the one that gave me the idea."

"I don't see what you mean. Gave you what idea?"

"He made me see that I was really in love with you," Lincoln said. "I was too stupid to know what I wanted, I guess."

"Well, Leonie said, 'I don't know just how flattered that is. But we'd better not tell Uncle. Not for a long time. It might give him a relapse, just when he's so much better.'"

Leonie was undoubtedly right, but he did not like to be proven wrong and he was an unwilling co-conspirator.

"What he needs is to recover his interest in life," Dr. Forbes said. "See that he reads the paper. Get some of his old friends to visit him. And tell Miss Julie not to tell him about all the beautiful deaths she's seen."

Heloise obeyed all these recommendations except the last, the difficulties of which, she was sure, Dr. Forbes had not sufficiently considered.

Colonel Beecham came in to supplement the newspaper accounts of the war, which were far from satisfactory to a military man, and was tactful about Leonie's engagement. Charlie Deaton came, got at all cast down by the brevity of the McDewitt firm's tenancy of the office he had rented, made a call and talked about the physical heavens—Miss Julie, of course, taking care of the spiritual aspects.

Henry next consented to sit up in an armchair, and agreed to amuse himself and write a pleasant note to Colonel Calvert, thanking him for his excellent advice, noting for his rudeness in not seeming more grateful for it at all, and mentioning his satisfaction at the understanding between the two young people.

He felt cheerier when Antoinette sent a note informing him that Colonel Calvert had explained that he McDewitt's hasty departure was not, after all, Henry's fault, and noting that she would soon see him.

A day later, when Heloise smilingly announced that Colonel Calvert had come to call, Henry sat straight in his armchair.

"Thank God I shaved this morning," he muttered. He rose shakily. Get my things, please, sister. No, don't try to persuade me to stay in this room. I'm not going to let old Calvert find me in a padded chair like an invalid. It may be the last time I ever do it, but I'll get downstairs. There are some things a man can't put up with."

The Colonel rose from his chair near the Franklin stove as Henry entered with slow and uncertain steps.

"Good afternoon, sir," Henry said, but he did not go to the length of extending his hand. "It was kind of you to come."

"I heard you were a bit unwell," said Colonel Calvert, "and I thought I'd come to see how you were."

"Please sit down, sir," Henry said.

They were seated on opposite sides of the little stove.

"Quite a nip in the air these days," said the Colonel, tentatively. "We must expect it. I am afraid I have changed my mind about the war."

"The War?" Henry exclaimed.

"The present war," the Colonel explained hastily. "I have been wrong about it. My sympathies were misplaced."

"I am glad to hear you say so," the Colonel took another sip of sherry and lighted a Turkish cigarette. He put down his glass. "I am very happy about Miss Leonie and Petigru," he said. "She is a beautiful young woman and everyone speaks well of her."

"Thank you, sir," Henry said. "We feel that she is a very lovely girl. And your nephew is a handsome young fellow."

"Handsome is as handsome does," said the Colonel modestly. "I believe this marriage will make a man of him." He rose. "I must go now," he said. "You have been ill. Petigru is going to call formally. He felt that it was best to wait until you had completely recovered."

They shook hands, and Heloise saw the Colonel out.

"I'm glad you two are on pleasant terms," she said to Henry.

"I don't intend to yield one inch," Henry said.

"He's a handsome old gentleman, isn't he?"

"I suppose so, but I don't think so," Henry replied, taking a shaky first step up the stairs. "But he's failing."

Mr. Peterson, who had been talked to forcefully by Henry O'Donoghue, wrote pleasantly to Heloise. He had failed to find a satisfactory successor, and he still needed a man he could put complete trust in and who took an interest in the business.

Although he concealed the fact, Henry was set up a good deal by this letter. However, it remained for Joseph Newman to set the seal on his convalescence.

Joseph was as ramshackle and ungrammatical as ever, but much more cheerful than when Henry had last seen him.

"I'm getting along right good with my singing," he confided. "They ask me to sing in St. Mary's choir. That's a nice girl, eel de choir." Joseph added, blushing hotly, "and I and she does sing some duets together."

"That's fine, Joseph. I hope she'll appreciate you," Henry said.

After Joseph had gone, Henry opened the piano, struck an F, and sang down the scale. It surprised him that his voice had come back so well.

"Magnificent," he rumbled. "Magnificent. I'll sing 'O Promise Me' at Leonie's wedding."

Expression Is What Counts In Baby Pictures Now

Got an ugly, but personable, kid toddling around the house?

Well, he could be earning the family living. Photographer Constance Bannister says the babies who aren't beautiful are coming into their own in the modelling business.

Ideas On Care Of Sinks and Bathtub

By United Press

Here are some ideas in the plumbing field.

When you're mixing some hot-weather refreshments, don't chop ice on the sink drainboard. The ice pick can easily crack the finish.

If you're a snap-shot fiend and like to do your own developing—find someplace beside the sink or bathtub to develop the film. The chemicals will spoil the finish.

And if you get the urge to do some painting—carefully cover all fixtures. Paint spots on enamel and china surfaces can be removed only when dry with a razor blade. And even that is likely to remove the glass—along with the paint.
